When was it first conducted?

In 2015 it was conducted for the first time in New Zealand by the local trade organization for Building Services Contractors (BSCNZ) and Kärcher. Together with local partners, Kärcher now wants to establish the Thank Your Cleaner Day on a global level to recognize the hard working cleaners around the world, who often work outside office hours and therefore out of sight.

Why is Kärcher part of the Thank Your Cleaner Day?

The company has always seen economic success and sustainable development as going hand in hand. Kärcher invests more than the average in research and development, in modern production methods and in high-quality apprenticeships and in-service training for its employees. By establishing the Thank Your Cleaner Day, Kärcher's engagement in social responsibility and sustainability is now taken another step further.

Why is [Local organization] part of the Thank Your Cleaner Day?

[Local organization] is an important partner for the Thank Your Cleaner Day as they have a strong network with the companies who provide professional cleaning services in the workplace area. Thus, with the support of [local organization], word about the Thank Your Cleaner Day can be spread as widely as possible.
